CASHED THE CHEQUE.

And Found Out Too Late That It Was a Clever Forgery.

Thursday evening a business-like stranger stepped into Mr. John O'Keefe's store and asked to look at some musical instruments.

He told Mr. O'Keefe at the start that he had no cash; but that he had been trading with Mr. Will Heiser and had a check signed by G. H. Heiser.

Everybody about here knows that the right kind of a check signed that way is as good as a whole crop of wheat at Duke Watson's mill, and so a trade was closed. Mr. O'Keefe handing the purchaser the difference in money between the price of the instrument and the amount called for by the check, the latter being $9.

The check was drawn on the State National Bank to the order of F. E. Burton and was so endorsed.

It was filled out in a good business hand, signed likewise, and the revenue stamp had been properly attached.

When Mr. O'Keefe presented the check the fraud was discovered; and now the Police are trying to locate Mr. Burton—or a fellow with some other name just as good.

Later—Officer Wallace went to Portsmouth at 10:46 last night, arrested "Mr. Burton," brought him here at 8:50 this morning, and he is now in Jail.

This is quick work, as Mr. Wallace was not given the case until yesterday afternoon.
